SEA AND SHORE

Work on the Carson Stopped.

Pactolus Departs--The Fort George Here--Branch Office Established--Notes.

The work on the wreck of the William Carson is to be given up. For several months salvaging of the cargo of coal has been going on and in that time less than 200 tons has been recovered by the divers. The original plan was to take out the coal in expectation that the would rise to its own buoyancy. Upon removing a portion of the coal the vessel rolled over so that her hatches instead of being in a horizontal position were in a perpendicular position. The current where the vessel is submerged is very strong and as the hull changed its position it was found to be getting dangerous for the divers to work. They could not go into the hold without imperilling their lives as the working of the air tubes was affected by the current which got them foul of the rigging and other debris. One of the divers was nearly smothered in this way one day last week. The vessel was gradually settling to the bottom and so the plan of employing air casks to raise her was tried. Nearly two hundred casks were placed in the after part of the bark and by this means her stern was raised to within about twenty feet of the surface. A big pontoon was made and taken down and secured near the bow to raise that. The current however was so strong that the pontoon tore loose from its lashings. The work has been under the immediate supervision of Alex. Lyle, an expert diver, and Ollie Sorenson, who have done everything in their power to make a success of the work.

After a careful consideration of the matter from all sides it was decided by the wrecking firm and C. L. Wight of the Wilder Co. not to take any further steps in the work. At present the Carson is on the bottom in ten and a half fathoms of water. It is probable that she will be allowed to remain where she is and the first Kona storm that comes will break her up. A considerable portion of coal will be washed up on the beach and recovered and the anchor and chains will be dredged for these being easy to get.

The Kinau's Run.

On her last trip the propeller of the Kinau was discovered to be loose so she will not be able to get away on her usual run today. She will have to wait the completion of repairs to the marine railway before docking to make repairs. The Claudine will rush the discharging of her big cargo of sugar and be ready by Wednesday or Thursday to go on the Kinau's run. The Helene will take the Claudine's run while that vessel is on the Hawaii route.

Branch Office.

The Wilder S. S. Co. is going to establish a branch office on the company's wharf. It is for the purpose of relieving the main office of a great deal of work that can be just as well transacted on the wharf. The office will be a shipping office and Commodore George Beckley, the head purser of the company, will be in charge. He will be in direct supervision of the steamer pursers and attend to all the freight shipped on the steamers of the Wilder Company. The office on the wharf will fill a long felt want as heretofore considerable time has been lost in the transaction of business in running between the main office and the wharf.

Baths Permanent.

President C. L. Wight of the Wilder Steamship Company, in conversation yesterday said: "No step taken by the Board of Health has so greatly facilitated the dispatch of steamers as the prophylactic injections. Since the officers and men have been allowed to come ashore all discord is done away with. Considering the fact that many of the men were confined for over four months aboard their vessels without shore liberty, it is remarkable that we were able to keep going as long as we did. Since the shore liberty was granted there has not been a single desertion and those men who stayed by the companies deserve a great deal of credit. The baths on the wharf are a great treat to the boys who are taking advantage of every opportunity offering to use them. We have determined to keep the bath rooms on the wharf permanently and the employees will have the use of them whenever they so desire. Instead of having a man to see that the boys take baths, we have had to have a man to see that they don't take too many during the day."

NOTES.

The Mikahala and Ke Au Hou got away for Kauai yesterday.

A bark was reported coming from the westward last evening about sunset.

The Czarina was docked yesterday. She still has a lot of cargo to discharge.

The Australia worked all day yesterday taking sugar. She leaves at 4 p. m. today.

Inspector H. Krueger has resigned from the Customs force to take a position uptown.

The Mauna Loa will leave today on her regular run to Maui and Hawaii. She will take a large cargo for Kona and Kau ports.

The Pactolus got away for New York yesterday with a full load of sugar. The vessel had been here three months and six days.

The Fort George, from San Francisco, arrived and anchored off the harbor early yesterday morning. Captain Morse's son is with him this trip as mate. The Fort George brings a very large cargo of general merchandise and plantation machinery. Her deck load was the reason for her rather slow trip, as on account of the heavy load on deck the ship had to be very tenderly handled.
